

Thompson's Station Train Depot

Originally built in 1866, this replica of the depot was built in 1993. The depot was called Thompson's Station in honor of Dr. Elijah Thompson who donated the land on which the village was built. Farmers drove their animals and products down the gravel roads to this depot for shipment to far away markets. Thompson's station was known as the German Millet Capital of the World because of the large amount of grain grown in the area.
